SGA webinar helps schools adapt

Despite the challenges, school leaders across the country are figuring out ways to adapt their zero waste strategies for school year 20-21, and some are even using the disruption caused by the pandemic to establish better, more sustainable ways of doing things. This was the big take-away from SGA's webinar Zero Waste School Practices During COVID-19, which took place on Sept 2.

Susan Casey and Becky Brodsky from SGA's Zero Waste Schools program moderated the conversation and started things off: "Even if some ideas aren't fully fleshed-out or have not been tested, we believe that there is a lot of value in just sharing ideas during this time when no one really knows what to expect. We hope that something you hear today will spark potential solutions for you and your school." Casey and Brodsky shared options and questions to consider for recycling and composting in the classroom, and also offered resources for learning how to reduce waste at home. They were delighted to have three school leaders from around the country contribute to the conversation.

Pumpkin Smash 2020

The Pumpkin Smash is an annual effort by communities to divert pumpkins from landfills by providing locations for residents to drop-off jack-o-lanterns to be composted. Organized by SCARCE, the event is held each year the Saturday after Halloween. It's a great community sustainability project for school environmental or service clubs and community groups.

This year's Pumpkin Smash is Saturday, Nov. 7, 9 a.m.-12 p.m. Site registration opens Aug. 1. Given that this event is held outdoors and can be conducted with minimal contact, SCARCE does not expect to experience disruptions due to COVID-19. All participants are advised to wear a mask and maintain proper social distancing.

Interested in volunteering or even hosting your own site but wondering how it all works? Join SCARCE for a live webinar on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 3:30 p.m., to learn all about the Pumpkin Smash, including how it got started, environmental impact, steps for hosting, volunteer opportunities, and day-of learning fun.

Walk to School Day 2020

Since 1997, communities have been coming together for Walk to School Day. This year, the coronavirus pandemic means that travel to school may be different than prior years. In some places, schools are open and students are able to walk and roll to school. In other places, the school trip might just be to the living room.

Regardless, the reasons for participating remain the same, with physical activity, safety, and social connectedness rising to the top. While Oct. 7 is officially Walk to School Day, celebrate any day in October and in a way that fits with local public health guidance.

Click HERE for 20 ideas for celebrating Walk to School Day in 2020.

Illinois Harvest of the Month is registration-free

Illinois Harvest of the Month is now registration-free to all Illinois feeding, garden, and education sites. You'll have access to technical assistance and virtual learning sessions, including virtual farm tours that you can share with teachers.

Illinois Harvest of the Month celebrates a different in-season, locally grown food item every month. Registered sites receive a seasonal calendar of suggestions for what to feature, then choose what works best for their meal or garden program. It's a free and flexible way to buy, grow, and serve more local food while teaching students about healthy eating, nutrition, and agriculture.

The Great Apple Crunch 2020

It's official--the Illinois Great Apple Crunch will take place on Oct. 8, and registration is now open. All K-12 schools, early childhood sites, and organizations across Illinois can sign up to crunch! into local apples. Discover the many ways you can celebrate. Should your site not reopen for in-person learning before October, the Great Apple Crunch will share "Apple Crunch Boxed" tools to continue participation in the Crunch at home.
